VII.1: BOOKS ON COMMUNISM, 2012

500 books from 47 countries have been retrieved for the 2012 issue of the International Bibliography, also including selected addenda from 2010-2011.

While compiling this bibliography, various web resources have been explored, such as numerous library online catalogues, but also bibliographies such as the bibliography of Bulgarian communism at <http://red.cas.bg/> and the “New Books from Russia” section in Revolutionary Russia have been particularly helpful.

Correspondents and readers are hereby encouraged to work together on the bibliography. We also look for more correspondents for the different countries and regions.

NB.: From this issue onwards, we use LOC transliteration for Cyrillic-language titles.

VII.2: JOURNAL ARTICLES ON COMMUNISM, 2012

This edition of the bibliography retrieves and bundles 1025 articles on the history of Communism and related topics published during the year 2012 in scholarly journals and serials worldwide. The items are sorted by journal titles and issues. In case a journal published less than two articles on the relevant topics during 2012, these articles are listed under "Other journals" at the end of this bibliography. We have tried to make the citations as complete as possible, yet in some cases it was not possible to retrieve the page numbers.

This bibliography is the result of a length process of research, retrieval and evaluation. Various web resources have been explored, the most important of them were the Labour History Serials Service (<http://serials.labourhistory.net>), the H-Soz-u-Kult periodicals directory (<http://hsozkult.geschichte.hu-berlin.de/zeitschriften/>), the Russian Scholarly Electronic Library (<http://elibrary.ru>). Still, several periodicals had to be retrieved and indexed in conventional libraries. A number of readers and correspondents have provided us with otherwise inaccessible tables of contents.

Please send in further information about journal articles published during 2013, as well as 2012 articles that might be missing here. We continue to look for correspondents on the different countries and world regions.
