

AUTHORS

Maurice Andreu

Born in 1944 in France, is a former teacher in economics in various french lycées (from 1973 to 1992, first at the lycée de Colombes and after at the lycée Jacques Decour in Paris) and at the Université Paris-Nord (Institut Universitaire de Technologie, Villetaneuse et Bobigny, 1980-2004). His research interest is in the economic thought of the Communist International. His main work is his "thèse d'université": Sur la théorie de la «crise générale du capitalisme». La genèse du concept de CGC. Contribution à une histoire des idées économiques dans l'Internationale Communiste de 1919 à 1929, Université de Villetaneuse-Paris XIII, 18 septembre 2000, 870 pp. This story of a well known formula, the "general crisis of capitalism", shows that these words appeared only at the 6th World Congress of the Comintern (an invention of Bukharin) in 1928. The first part of this thesis is published as: L'Internationale Communiste contre le capital, 1919-1924, ou comment empoigner l'adversaire capitaliste?, Paris, PUF, 2003, 320 pp. He has written various articles or papers on Joseph M. Gillman (postface to a French translation of The Falling Rate of Profit, in 1980), Jenő Varga (review of the Varga biography by André Mommen) and Bukharin.
